Welcome to Umbrella, our second annual directory of accessible and inclusive services and providers in our Portland metro.

In 2018 we began this project as a little love letter to our friends and neighbors to help them find the resources they need for their families. We know how time consuming and frustrating it is to spend hours online sifting through information, discovering what you think is the perfect match, only to learn that it no longer exists. We thought we could help because finding, curating, and organizing useful information for families is one of the things PDX Parent does best.

Along the way our little love letter kind of exploded. Every time we'd find something to add to the list, we'd find a couple more just like it. This ever-evolving guide has more than 800 listings — mostly local — and we believe we've just scratched the surface.

Umbrella is digital and easy-to-use. From the Table of Contents, click on a category and you'll jump right to that section. Click on the page number on the bottom and you'll jump back to the Table of Contents. Web links and email links are active and clickable.

Because things are always changing there's a suggestion link on the bottom of each page. Use this to tell us about necessary corrections or things we simply missed. Your active contributions over the coming months will help make Umbrella a treasured resource for families with specific needs in our community.

We don't expect anyone to feel all warm and fuzzy because of this project. After all, it's a directory! But our hope is that Umbrella will make many families' lives just a little bit easier, and as it does, then we'll feel warm and fuzzy knowing we've used our skills and resources to do some good.

Coach4Parents

Parenting in the age of smartphones and tablets can be a struggle as we help children find a healthy tech + real life balance. We want our children to be competent and safe, but not on screens so much it impacts their emotional and social development. There are positive and proactive ways parents and teachers can talk about "good" screen time with children. With over 20 years experience providing parenting education in schools, community, and family court settings, Richard Halpern offers behavior management strategies you can implement immediately! Available for individual "focused support" sessions and conference presentations. Located in SW Portland, 1 minute off I-5.

Dvortcsak Speech and Language Services, Inc

DSL SI provides in home speech and language services and parent training to enhance children's social communication skills. Treatment is individualized based on family and child needs. A variety of treatment methodologies are used including aspects of developmental approaches and applied behavior analysis. Treatment techniques are chosen based on the child's individualized goals. DSL SI uses the Project ImPACT (Improving Parents as Communication Teachers) curriculum for parent training. This is an evidence-based program that teaches parents to promote their child's social-communication skills during daily activities. The program was developed by Anna Dvortcsak, MS, CCC-SLP and Brooke Ingersoll, PhD, BCBA-D.

Wright Behavior: Consulting and Advocacy LLC

We are a behavior consulting agency with a unique view; we believe behavior is communication itself, therefore we have become the linguists of behavior. In addition to those services, we provide advocacy for families who have children in school settings. As a former special education teacher and parent of a child receiving services my understanding of all facets has become broad and increases the ability to find a common ground between all players. Creating bridges is our specialty.

Suzanne M. Gall, Attorney at Law

Does your child struggle more in school than other classmates? Do you feel helpless dealing with behavior problems or outbursts that involve school? Perhaps your child is not offered the full array of placements to ensure an education in the least restrictive environment? An education attorney can help you fight for your child's right to a free appropriate public education (FAPE). You do not have to deal with these issues or the school district alone. Suzanne has been a licensed attorney for over 20 years and will fight for your child's educational rights to prepare them for their future.

Parenting in the age of smartphones and tablets can be a struggle as we help children find a healthy tech + real life balance. We want our children to be competent and safe, but not on screens so much it impacts their emotional and social development. There are positive and proactive ways parents and teachers can talk about "good" screen time with children. With over 20 years experience providing parenting education in schools, community, and family court settings, Richard Halpern offers behavior management strategies you can implement immediately! Available for individual "focused support" sessions and conference presentations. Located in SW Portland, 1 minute off I-5.
